

Waiting for Consequences

There are millions of actions one day in the world. This situation increase day by day because population are increasing every day. All of actions make people gained experiences. Every experience teaches something to people. Steve jobs was just one of them. He relaised that everything.He was been through was for a reason. He said that everything happens for a reason.

Firstly, people meet other people. They can not know that the people they just met can change their life after a while. For example, Steve Jobs was introduced Steve Wozniak through a friend. They did not know then, that they were going to establish apple company and become one of the most succesful business men in the whole world.

Secondly, people get insipired from things. Steve jobs was one of these people who get insipired from things that any person can see but can not relaised. To illustrate, after he and his friend reading article on Esquire, they started to work harder on making free phone call and breaking the codes when he was high school student, he sold out these boxes that he bought 40 $ 150 $. They started making trade in these years.

Finally, there are some people they never break their promises. Steve jobs was like one of them. He promised Bill Gates and Microsoft he wasn't going to use any software using mouse, without macintosh computers. For this reason, he started research about systems without mouse. Therefore, he invented touch-operated products such as, ipod, ipad and iphone. He kept his promises and started new trend which includes using electronic devices.

To conclude, we can see easily what was written is inavodiable. There are just some events triggered. Steve jobs life's was determined by these events. We talk about above. I think, everybody should believe in destiny but everybody also should try to do their best.
